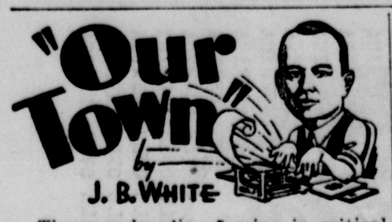
VOLUME NUMBER 87 | CAMERON, MILAM COUNTY, TEXAS, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1946 | EIGHT PAGES TODAY | NUMBER 21



The merchandise famine is critical out here in West Texas. The best territory one sees on this route is in Fisher county and around Sweetwater. Rain had fallen there during the past few days but generally the fields were seared from the long drouth. One sees no cotton at all from Cameron to Plains. East across the South Plains where there is water to irrigate they tell us here that the cotton is fair. In Lubbock county alone there are 60 thousand acres under cultivation. Hundreds of Mexican pickers are on the highways in old trucks. They are on their way up to the lands above the caprock but they will have to hurry. Frost will soon come and then winter. They've got to get back to San Antonio before the first cold spell for they are ill-clad for colder climes. Before reaching Post City the county seat of Garza county, we picked up the rain again. Here at Post we climb up to the caprock and see a green world. A geographical wonder, this sheer escarpment, running for hundreds of miles it may have been the lave of an ancient ocean. Below it the earth is broken and twisted, occasionally flattening out to be broken again by hills that stretch away to Bell county and beyond the great coastal plane. The second caprock is some 150 miles away in New Mexico. The geologist tells us that the staked plains were once a vast tropical forest and in recent years exploring parties have discovered the fossil remains of many of the now extinct animals of history. At Canyon in Randall county is located the state museum and there one sees fossil remains of the saw tooth tiger dug out of the Palo Duro canyon. Beyond the cap rock west, the lands are red and sandy. This is a farm country, once the home of the American bison. For the first time in months the plain's lakes are full of water. They are slight depressions in the table of land, dug out by winds that create dust storms. For the benefit of my little friends of the geography class, the Brazos, father of Texas waters, is red because of the erosion over this vast area of its watershed Since the rainfall is light we must conclude that the winds are doing to the soil here what water is doing to the richer lands on the shed of so many of the Texas streams, notably Little River in our own country. This country is young and the towns are new, hardly ny of them over 40 years. Compared to these sparkling little cities spread out like gems on the green carpet of the plains, Cameron, like some of our politicians, is just a de luxe edition of the march of time. We had made our plans to spend the night in Tahoka. These people out here are tolerant to a degree with foreigners but never very friendly. This is the former home of W. T. Hanes and Leo Jackson. This is the place where the whole country side turned out with sticks and staves over some football reverses. I am glad Leo Jackson left here before he played that game against Killeen last year. Having been refused a second glass of water in a local cafe and seeing the sun some four fingers high, we pushed on to Brownfield. Tomorrow, into New Mexico.

AIR SHOW PROVIDES THRILLS AT DEDICATION

Several hundred persons thrilled at the stunts provided at the air show held in connection with the dedication of Cameron's $25,000 air park, here Sunday afternoon.

Originally set for September 1, the ceremonies, postponed until Sunday, because of bad weather on the original date, opened at 2 o'clock with only a small crowd present when Mayor A. W. McCullin started the program with a welcoming address.

As the program progressed the attendance grew until by the time the air show, which climaxed the day, got off to a thrilling start, several hundred persons waded the mud in the park to witness the exhibitions.

R. F. Ravenstein, chief of the Civil Aeronautics Inspectors of Houston, was at the "mike" throughout the show, announcing the participants in the events and giving a description of the various stunts, and information on the planes.

"The Flying Squirrels" of Dallas, thrilled the crowd with their daredevil aerial stunts, and others, both local and visiting pilots, presented demonstrations in the air.

Richard Burke Suffers Broken Arm in Marlin Game; Out Indefinitely

Coach Leo Jackson of the Yoemen football squad was more certain than ever Saturday morning that this Friday the Thirteenth stuff really has something to it.

The reason for the low feeling was the report the doctors had given on the extent of the injury suffered by Richard Burke, 140-pound, halfback in last night's game against Marlin.

Burke was forced to leave the game late in the first half with an arm injury. After a little first aid treatment he returned to the lineup until the second and third string men were sent in. After visiting a doctor Saturday morning it was discovered that Burke's arm was broken and he would be lost to the Yoemen for several weeks if not the remainder of the season.

Burke is a two-letter man and was making his bid for a third. A very capable boy who runs and blocks with the best of them, he was giving quite an exhibition when the injury occurred.

He was and still is figured on to add much to the Yoemen backfield this season.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Turney of Hanover were visitors in Cameron Saturday.

Henry Lee Johnson of Lexington, Texas, is a surgery patient in the Newton Memorial Hospital.

Kuzel, Commissioner Precinct 1; Grady Stidham, Comm., Prec. 2; E. L. McGuyer, Comm. Prec. 3; E. G. Stiles, Comm. Precinct 4. "Conn L. Isaacs, County Auditor."

YOEMEN SWAMP MARLIN IN SEASON'S OPENER

The Cameron Yoemen met Marlin in the season's football opener here last night (Friday).

In "met" we mean they faced the opponents for the kick-off and then deliberately ignored the Marlin lads for the balance of the evening.

From kick-off to end of the game the Yoemen completely ignored their foes on the field and went about their work of showing the home fans who was who and what was what.

Coach Leo Jackson, with a tinge of sympathy for his opponents, sent in the second team but forgot to tell them to take it easy so they proceeded to show up the first team. Finally the good coach sent in the waterboys, scorekeepers, and handymen and was about ready to call the Ada Henderson tots, when the old clock finally pointed at quitting time.

The score was 45 to 0.

With a crisp nip in the air reminding spectators of Thanksgiving weather, the wet seats were forgotten and an almost capacity crowd was on hand to witness the display and introduction of the Yoemen — —and practically every one on the squad made an appearance on the field.

Nearly all the Yoemen backs got a good look at the goal line, With T. J. O'Neil, who scored twice, Michalka, Paul Burke, John David Matula, and L. W .Turner, all crossing the goal line.

O'Neil started the habit by scoring in the first quarter. He scored again in the second, quickly followed by Michalka. Buck crossed in the third and Matula, Turner and Hauk made their counters in the fourth.

Marlin was granted one first down for which they fought valiantly, while the Cameron lads marked up 15. The only pass attempted was by Cameron and was completed, it was a 15-yard toss from Billy Hanes to Edwin Schmidt.

Bolin, 150-pound Marlin quarterback, sparked his team with good driving power until some Yoeman cub stepped on his head in the fourth and he was removed.

Next game Mr. White will be back and you will be able to get a little sense out of the report on the game. Fact is I just don't know and besides can't see. If it was a ping-pong game I could tell you all about it.

New Bleacher Seats at Yoe Stadium Provide For Larger Crowds

Some 300 more football fans can be seated at Yoe Stadium this year than in the past as the result of new bleacher seats being erectd.

On the west end of the field bleacher seats have been erected to seat Negro fans, while additional bleacher seats have been erected on the east side of the south grandstand for more whites.

In all, it is reported that 300 or more additional seats have been provided, and record crowds are expected to fill them during this season.

FUNERAL RITES HELD FOR MRS. MINNIE HASSELMAN

Funeral services for Mrs. Minnie Hasselman, wife of Adolph Hasselman, were held from Nicholson Funeral Home, Rosebud, and St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church, Burlington, with Rev. R. Kalkbrenner officiating, Tuesday, Sept. 17.

Mrs. Hasselman was born Dec. 2, 1877 at Cat Spring, Austin county, Texas. With her family she moved to Milam county in 1847. She was married to Adolph Hasselman on Oct. 27, 1902. To them were born three children who survive her. They are Mrs. O. F. Schuetze, Houston, Tex.; W. T. Hasselman, Houston, and Alfred Hasselman, Burlington. Other survivors are her husband, Adolph Hasselman; her twin sister, Mrs. Lizzie Grimm, and six grand daughters.

In 1907, as a young couple, Mr. and Mrs. Hasselman came to the Burlington community, making it their permanent home, and it was there they reared their family.

Mrs. Hasselman was a charter member of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church. Her many friends will remember her as always being a faithful worker in her church and Women's Guild. She was never too busy with her household duties to devote much time to do her Master's work.

At every opportunity she was ready and happy to render service to others. Her close friends and relatives hold in memory her patience and cheerfulness in her everyday way of life. To everyone she was always generous, kind and loving. Truly her countless good works will be a loving monument to her memory.

May her loved ones feel that:
"She has not died who left us
For the better land of day,
She would not so bereave us
She is only "just away."
And right behind life's curtain
Beyond all grief and pain
There'll be a happier dawning
When we shall meet again."

Read What Dr. McCollum Said About Septic Sore Throat

Dr. E. V. McCollum, noted food scientist of John Hopkins University, says:

"Even when conditions are favorable for the production of raw milk of very low bacterial count, a city will now and again suffer a serious epidemic unless the milk is pasteurized. A notable instance is that of an epidemic of septic sore throat in Portland, Oregon, some years ago, in which the amount of illess was very great, and 15 persons, among them some of the most eminent citizens of that city, died."

Dr. McCollum further states:

"I have for years insisted that every city should have its milk pasteurized and under conditions where the city health officer can effectively supervise the process."

STOP AND THINK

You don't have to be a scientist to make sure that your milk supply is safe. Most of us wouldn't know how to make a test in a laboratory to prove the safety of the milk we buy, and we couldn't make it of every bottle we use, if we did. BUT YOU CAN BE POSITIVELY SURE—every day—every bottle—you can protect the health of your family, from the tiniest tot to the oldest—if you make sure that the milk is pasteurized. And you can easily tell, by looking at the bottle cap. The law says the cap must state plainly that it is PASTEURIZED—if it is—but must not use the work, if it is not.

Ask for pasteurized milk, pasteurized buttermilk, and pasteurized butter at your grocery.

Brownfield is one of those fine little cities that grow up on a cow ranch. The Brownfield's are rich land owners. They gave the town-site and the thrift and industry of other people have brought forth a modern little city of some 7000 people. Nearby the majors have brought in an oil field. Some of the old timers are resentful, just like they are in Cameron and any number of other communities crusted over with traditions, prejudices and smugness. But despite all these things this is one of the most beautiful cities we have seen. Out of Lynn into Terry county we get our first sight of shinnry, a small knee high shrub that looks like post oak and produces acorns. I stopped the car and walked for some distance along the highway to look at this and other vegetation. Many varieties of flowers are blooming along the road The winds were rising and in the distance a sandswirl reddened the western sky. Overhead I could hear the sough of the winds in the wires of a high line and the sound was mournful, and a sense of loneliness creeps over you as you look off into the distance and pick out an occasional cluster of green trees and there the family unit, the young woman who became the Prairie wife and the young man who nursed vegetation through the sod to make a home on the plains. We found lodging for the night at The Motor Inn, which I reccomend to my friends. Cost us $5 but with all accomodations you will find in a modern hotel. The night was warm but toward daybreak it was cold. I asked a waitress at the nearby cafe about the elevation. She said "I don't know exactly, but it isn't very high, probably 5000 feet." I said "Where I live it is only 400 feet." She exclaimed: "My god, you must live in a hole." You're telling me. Actually the elevation here is 3200 feet. Brownfield was established in 1900. Food is high in the west. We drove out of Brownfield around 7 a. m. and into Plains leaving the farm country and driving through ranches. At Broncho we crossed the New Mexico state border. For the next 60 miles you see the same type of soil as one finds on the plains, red sand and since recent rains have revived vegetation the crops are luxuriant and white face cattle by the hundreds roam the pastures. At Caprock we stopped for a chat with the postmaster. He runs a small store, just a trading post in the ranch country. The postoffice is a cubby hole in a corner of the store where the westerners get their mail. The cap rock is much higher than at Post and after climbing up several hundred feet we headed west toward Roswell crossing the desert, a vast stretch of badlands covered with shinnry. The winds have pock-marked the landscape and red sand dunes tell the story of devastation in the dust bowl. Tomorrow the Pecos valley and Roswell.

A light rain began falling around Plains and continued until we reached Roswell. Each succeeding range of hills become higher as we make time on west. One of the most beautiful sights we have yet enjoyed is the Pecos River valley on the outskirts of Roswell. After a long climb you reach the summit and go down into the valley. The Pecos is one of the longest rivers on the American continent. It rises in Northern New Mexico and empties into the Rio Grande at Del Rio. It is muddy today from rains that have fallen within the past few hours. The Pecos valley is rich in irrigation projects. The river is often no more than a brook in its flow but the lands in its valley are as rich as those of the Rio Grande and the Nile. Water is fed to irigation ditches from the Rio Felix, a tributary of the Pecos. The Felix is fed by snows melting in the Rocky Mountains. We saw our first irrigated cotton. It will produce around two bales per acre and here we entered the first of a number of fruit and vegetable areas. They are picking tomatoes and selling roasting ears and matermelons. Roswell is typical of what a city may do in a farm and ranch country. It has a population of 25,000 but has no tall buildings. Its principal trade comes from farms and ranches. These are friendly people here and they were not to be denied because of the arid lands. They made the Pecos Valley blossom like a rose and today it is one of the richest farm territories in the United States. Our destination is just 75 miles away and so we push on. We can see the mountain ranges ahead and off to the west we can see a mountain sticking up above the clouds. It is very far away but as we make time it seems to get in our path but eventually we leave it to the right for we are now turning a bit Southwest. That peak is in the northern Capitan range. We are fast gaining altitude and now comes the big hump as we saw it east of the Pecos and we are going into the valley of the Hondo River, a tributary of the Pecos. As we reach the floor and the rich valley lands we pick up the apple orchards. This is one of the most beautiful valleys in the world and for many miles its rich lands yield fruit and vegetables. Here one sees mile upon mile of apple orchards and dozens of fruit markets. There are vast orchards of cherry trees, prune and plum, to say nothing of peaches. Cherry cider is made and sold in glass jugs like vinegar back in the pickling areas of central Texas. We stopped at Hondo and bought a water melon from Weatherford, Texas. It weighed 50 pounds, cost $1.50, and was the smallest on display. The man who sold it to us is a Texan. In fact nearly everybody we see is from Texas. Tomorrow more of the same.

East of the Pecos we crossed the old Goodnight-Loving trail. Their story has no comparable parallel in Texas cattle history. As I recall the fascinating story written by J. Evetts Haley, these pioneers of the plains in establishing the famous trail laid the foundations for modern ranching. Jim Loving died from wounds sustained in an Indian fight and Goodnight went on to become the greatest cattleman of his age. Years later the body of Jim Loving was placed on a caison made of wagon wheels and taken back to Missouri for a Masonic burial. Charles Goodnight remembered. He was a great uncle of Ed Westbrook of Cameron and a brother of Elijah Goodnight of Waco. In his early days Charles Goodnight came with his mother to Nashville on the Brazos in Milam county. He got his first job working for the late John Pool, pioneer in the Jones Prairie community. He once built a ranch home in the Palo Duro canyon. Between 1866 and 1895 more than 250 thousand head of cattle trailed to market over the famous Goodnight-Loving route. Blazed by Charles Goodnight and Oliver Loving, the trail stretched 2000 miles from Texas to Wyoming. On Highway 70 out of Tatum, New Mexico, we found the trail. It went above the bluffs on the east side of the Pecos River. A few miles further we crossed the John Chusim trail. This is not to be confused with the Chisholm trail which was blazed in Oklahoma and Kansas by Jess Chisholm, for John Chisum was a Texan, born in Red River county. He was owner of the famous Spring River Ranch in New Mexico and was one of the first to begin ranching on the Pacos. He trailed several herds of cattle from the Pecos Valley to the San Carlos Reservation in Aizona under government contract in the early 1870's. The trail left the Pecos at Seven Rivers to swing westward to follow roughly the present route of U. S. Highway 70 into Arizona. As we speed along the Hondo River we recall for your information this is Billy The Kid Country. Before I return I am going over to Lincoln. The Kid was killed at Fort Sompter by Pat Garrett, Sheriff of Lincoln county. The best story ever written about Billy The Kid is the work of Walter Noble Burns. The story is about as fascinating as any you will find on the bad men of the west. Billy The Kid was born in Brooklyn, New York. His real name was William Bonney. He came out to New Mexico as a small boy and killed his first man when he was in his early teens and from that time on he was involved in what was later known as the Lincoln County War. Yesterday in a curio shop they showed me a pistol reputed to have been the property of the Kid, also an old lock he is said to have broken when he escaped jail at Lincoln by killing both his guards. I have seen at least two dozen pistols that belonged to Billy The Kid. A good story for tourists.

The valley of the Hondo is a paradise. Some of it looks like the scenes from the Swiss Alps. Where the mountains reduce the width of the valley, homes, churches and ranch houses are built along the heights. The loss of fruit here will be tremendous. No sugar. Despite the abundance of fruit here a plum will cost you a nickel. Nearly all the west is arid. There are many dams across the Hondo. They are built of pine logs cut out of the Lincoln National Forest. These dams are merely used for holding back enough water for limited irrigation and for stock. We are now getting into the pine country and our destination is just ahead. It is rather warm today (Sunday) and we take the cold climate talk with a grain of salt. Little did we know that after sundown you put on heavy clothes and stack up the blankets at night. Just before reaching Ruidosa we cross the Hondo and presently pick up the Ruidosa River. It is a small stream and its waters abound with rainbow trout higher up. I plan to limber up a couple of fly rods my good friend Charlie Nabors brought me just before we left Cameron. I hope Charlie is making some progress on that new road. We owe him much for he has done more than any other man to get this improvement. Ruidosa is built like a movie town and one thinks of the lines of Robert W. Service: "It's pay day at the mines and the bearded brutes come down." The city is six miles long and has only one street. On the west side flows the river, on the east mountains. Where the valley is wide enough there are stores and cabins on either side. Although one of the oldest communities in New Mexico, this little town only recently became a widely celebrated summer resort. The elevation is 6800 feet. Outside my window as these lines are written, pines three feet in diameter and a hundred feet high hold back the sun which only a few minutes ago came over the mountains. The temperature is 40 degrees and it is exactly 7:10 a.m., Tuesday, September 10. Our house is one of rustic beauty built of pine cut right here in Ruidosa. The house is hemmed in with dense pine growth and some 50 yards from the river. From the street of the city you can see Old Baldy, a 12 thousand foot peak and as early as September 10 snow has gleamed from its russet summit which is above the timber line. In the middle of the day the temperature is around 60 but only for a little while. Along about 5 in the afternoon the shadow of the range to the west engulfs the city and temperature falls rapidly. There is an hour difference in time. This is a silent hemmed-in world and I can think of no place on earth I'd rather be right now. At evening when all the world is hushed to whisper there comes the subdued roar of far-off waterfalls and above, the great pines toss gently in the canopy of chill winds sweeping in from distant peaks. You sleep and it is good for the soul, the body and the mind. Tomorrow something about this magic city in the mountains.

BOYCE HOUSE "Gives You Texas"

One of the most eloquent speeches in the history of American politics was the speech of James A. Garfield nominating John Sherman for President. An excerpt follows:

I have witnessed the extraordinary scenes of this convention with deep solicitude. Nothing touches my heart more quickly than a tribute of honor to a great and noble character; but as I sat in my seat and witnessed this demonstration, this assemblage seemed to me a human ocean in tempest.

I have seen the sea lashed into fury and tossed into spray, and its grandeur moves the soul of the dullest man; but I remember that it is not the billows, but the calm level of the sea, from which all heights and depths are measured. When the storm has passed and the hour of calm settles on the ocean, when the sunlight bathes its peaceful surface, then the astronomer and surveyor take the level from which they measure all terrestrial heights and depths.

Gentlemen of the convention, your present temper may not mark the healthful pulse of our people. When your enthusiasm has passed, when the emotions of this hour has subsided, we shall find below the storm and passion, that calm level of public opinion from which the thoughts of a mighty people are to be measured and by which final action will be determined.

Not here in this brilliant circle where fifteen thousand man and women are gathered is the destiny of the Republic to be decreed for the next four years. Not here, where I see the enthusiastic faces of seven hundred and fifty-six delegates waiting to cast their lots into the urn and determine the choice of the Republic, but by four millions of Republican firesides, where the thoughtful voters are seated, with the calm thoughts inspired by love of home and country, with the history of the past, the hopes of the future, and reverence for the great men who have adorned and blessed our nation in days gone by, burning in their hearts,—there God prepares the verdich which will determine the wisdom of our work tonight. Not in Chicago, in the heat of June, but at the ballot-boxes of the Republic, in the quiet of November, after the silence of deliberate judgment, will this question be settled.

Let's Talk Agriculture

BY BILL ARTHUR

The possibilities of the dairy business has had a shot in the arm with the interest that the Sanitary Farms Dairies have shown. They propose to buy milk at a designated place at the present price of $5.75 per hundred pounds of 4% butter fat milk. Cameron farmers have long needed a market for their milk and they have an opportunity to get the market if enough farmers decide to produce milk. When we think of a cow that will produce 24 lbs. of milk daily for ten months during the year, at present prices, the cow will net the farmer at least $150.00 to $175.00 a year.

The milk that would be produced by farmers would not fall back on the local market, rather it would be marketed in Houston where 20,000 gallons more milk are needed daily.

How to Fireproof Household Cottons

Lately a lot of folks have been asking for a simple way to fireproof curtains and other household articles declares Milam County's Home Demonstration Agent.

Well, it's easy to fireproof any cotton fabric that won't be hurt by dipping in a solution of borax and boric acid water. Follow this simple recipe:

Make a solution of seven ounces of borax, three ounces of boric acid, and two quarts of hot water — Remember, that's seven ounces of borax, three ounces of boric acid, and two quarts of hot water. Keep stirring until the water looks clear.

Next, dip the article you want to fireproof into the solution . . . just as though you were rinsing it in water. Wring it out, hang it up to dry, and press in the usual way with a warm iron.

That's all there is to it . . . Remember, though, you need to re-dip articles every time they're laundered. And the curtains, towels, or clothes you've fireproofed must be dry when you dip them. Otherwise the solution would be diluted and less effective.

You can fireproof such things as curtains for the kitchen, a cotton rug which lies in front of the living room fireplace, cloth pot lifters, ironing board covers, and the like. Or you can fireproof large articles of cloth, wall hanging, upholstery, or large cotton rugs by spraying the borax-boric acid solution on them.

SHERIFF CARL BLACK IS SOLD ON HUBAM CLOVER

COLLEGE STATION. — At least one Milam County farmer is sold on the idea that hubam clover is the best cash and soil building crop that can be grown in the blackland areas of Texas.

He is Carl Black of Cameron, and he's also Sheriff of Milam county. In the Jones Prairie community, Black owns what is reported to be "an old, eroded farm." On a 50-acre field that had not been cultivated for two years, he seeded Hubam clover last October at the rate of 20 pounds an acre. What he really had in mind was strictly a grazing program, and during most of the year, 83 sheep and goats and 15 head of horses and mules grazed the clover. In addition, 20 head of cattle and 50 hogs grazed the field at frequent periods.

Although most of the clover was naturally kept down by this continual grazing, in the spring about ten acres of the crop "grew so rapidly that it made seed." It did make seed—7700 pounds of it—an average of over 700 pounds an acre, a yeild that was made on the "very poorest type of eroded land—land that would not bring $20 per acre on the market."

Milam County Agricultural Agent J. W. Stufflebeme reports that several farmers in that area have had similar results with this clover, bearing out the opinion of specialists of the Texas A. & M. College Extension Service that hubam clover is the best cash and soil building legume for the blacklands of Texas.

Texas Cotton Pickers May Lose Citizenship If They Lose Contest

BLYTHEVILLE, ARK.—Texas entries in the National Cotton Picking Contest here Oct. 3 will stand to "lose their citizenship in the Lone Star State" if they get beaten again this year, C. Hohn, state farm labor supervisor for Texas, has written contest officials.

"If the Texas boy lets a fellow from Arkansas beat him, he will never be able to come back to Texas," he wrote. "Please don't come and cry on my shouider when the Texas boy walks off with the honors."

The contest, sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Blytheville, has grown to nation-wide prominence. It emphasizes quality picking. Hence, the person who picks the most cotton may not necessarily win first prize. Cleanliness of the cotton picked and the completeness with which the picker's row is stripped of all mature cotton are given equal credit with the total weight picked.

Last year, 154 persons entered the contest. This year, more than 300 are expected on the basis of entries already in, according to William Wyatt, contest chairman. Deadline for entrance is midnight, Oct. 2. The contest starts at 10 a. m. the next day and lasts two hours. There are $2500 in prizes ,including awards for the best women pickers, although women are also eligible for the open contest.

Parent-Teachers Set September 18 as First Meeting Date Here

At an executive meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association Tuesday afternoon in the home of the president, Mrs. Alva Sanders, plans were made for the opening of the season at the first meeting of the year, Wednesday, Septmber 18, in the Yoe High school auditorium at 2:45 o'clock. The early meeting hour has been arranged in the hopes that more of the parents from rural areas sending children to the Cameron system, might be present. Bus arrangements could be made in many instances, it is believed, to transport the parents into the meeting and both parents and children could make the trip home after school on the bus.

General good health for the school child will be discussd. A good representatation of parents is expected and well laid plans to publicize the meeting and the nature of the subject matter are factors which will doubtless bring out a good attendance ,leaders in the work point out.

TEXAS FARM PRICES DROP DURING PAST MONTH

COLLEGE STATION.—Prices received by Texas farmers and ranchers for a number of products dropped during the month ending August 15, according to a report from the Bureau of Agricultural Economics in Austin, received by the Texas A. & M. College Extension Service, this decline in prices offset to some extent the general farm price advances recorded in July. The report showed slight to sharp drops in prices received for grains, peanuts, milk cows, chickens and all meat animals except hogs. The most significant declines were in prices of corn, grain sorghum, beef cattle, calves, sheep and lambs.

Sharp advances continued on cotton, cotton seed and hogs. Cotton at 33.6 cents per pound was the highest since July 1920, but was still 2.6 cents per pound below the peak of 36.2 cents reached in March ,1920. During the month, hog prices were at a record high of $20.30 per hundred pounds. The previous record was $18.60 in August 1919.

Only slightly higher prices were received by farmers during the month for turkeys, dairy products, and alfalfa hay. Other farm prices did not change significantly during the period.

Be Ready To BATTLE THE BORER

This is a close-up view of effective warfare against the corn borer. Note the trailing wires (10 feet long) that pull stalks and trash flat into the furrow.
Deep, clean plowing and timely planting have proved to be the most effective means of fighting the ever spreading corn borer. Stalks and weeds that shelter him during winter months must be completely buried. High speed plowing and discing with modern tractor power pulverizes the soil and prevents escape of the borer moth from the edge of the furrow-slice.
We now have available, a complete summary of the best proved methods of controlling both varieties of corn borer — European and Southwestern. The Allis-Chalmers booklet, "Battle the Borer", shows how proper tillage will reduce borer population. Fully illustrated, it explains quickly and simply how to fight the borer with your regular tractor implements. Ask us for a free copy.

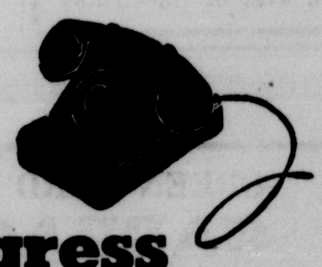
A REPORT on telephone progress in Texas


The first postwar year was the busiest year we've ever known, filled with work to give telephone service to those who are waiting and to improve service for everyone.
We have put in 240,000 telephones in Texas—nearly twice as many as in any prewar year. We are handling more calls per telephone now than in the rushed days of the war. And even this record-breaking performance has not been enough.
But we're glad to say we've been able to take care of most customers whose applications were held up by lack of facilities on V-J Day—and in most places, most of the time, service is fast and good. Operators are answering 9 out of 10 calls within 10 seconds.
Demand Up
On the other hand, more people than ever are applying for telephones—24,000 a month for the last six months. Prewar months averaged 11,000. Thus, as we go ahead on one front, there are increasing demands on another.
We want all those waiting for telephone service to know we are doing our best to get it to them. It is just as much an emergency to us as a hurricane—but this is country-wide.
Bell System factories today are working around the clock, three shifts a day. And—despite scarcities—are even breaking some records set in boom days years ago.
In Texas we're putting the new equipment to work as fast as we get it, and putting up new buildings to house it when necessary.
People Are Telephoning More
This first postwar year has also brought an extraordinary increase in telephone use. Local calls are now 7⅛ million a day in Texas—nearly 1⅛ million a day over last year. That rise would have taken several years in normal times. Toll and long distance calls are also at all-time highs.
We have increased our forces to handle your rising telephone needs. Now we have 48,000 employees in the Southwest—more than ever before. This is an increase of 11,000 since the war ended. About 6,000 are returned veterans.
It will take a great deal of money and some time to do all the things we have planned for your telephone service, but our 250-million-dollar 5-year expansion program in the Southwest is well under way. During the first postwar year alone we spent about 50 million dollars providing telephone equipment.
It all adds up to our desire to serve well everyone who uses the telephone. And to do it always with courtesy and understanding.

TOMMY DORSEY SHOW IS STATE FAIR FEATURE

The most gala entertainment extravaganze ever to appear in the Southwest will cause the amusements spotlight of this section of the country to be focused on the State Fair of Texas, when the Tommy Dorsey Show begins its 22-performance engagament at Dallas' Fair Park Auditorium from Oct. 5-20.

In announcing the signing of the star-studded show, Julius Schepps, State Fair entertainment chairman, said he considers it one of the most sparkling features lined up for this year's great State Fair program. He revealed that besides famous trombonist and band leader Dorsey and his 34-piece orchestra, the show will feature Gypsy Rose Lee, Lusty headliner of the striptease circuit and "Sugar Chile' 'Robinson, sensational 7-year-old boogie woogie prodigy.

Other noted performers making this show the great collection of talent that it is are rollicking comedian Jackie Gleason, recently comedy star of the Broadway hit "Follow the Girls," Mellow-voiced Johnny Downs, movie and musical show singer, and the lithe and talented Stewart Morgan dancers, Schepps disclosed.

Gypsy Rose Lee, billed as the "prima donna nuda" of the American stage, will to Fair Park audiences a hand-picked company of alluring chorus girls, who will assist the provocative star in a highly specialized routine. Miss Lee, famous as an actress and an authoress of detective novels with a burlesque background, will be making her first State Fair appearance.

In signing Tommy Dorsey and his band, the Fair has been praised for securing the entertainment services of one of the most consistently popular musical organizations in the land. Dorsey and his organization, besides their frequent engagements in the best known dance spots of the movies ,numerous supper club acts, and special recitals ,having given particularly noteworthy hot jazz concert in the world famous Carnegie Hall.

Dorsey himself is considered the greatest jazz trombonist of the day. His band, which can pour forth the most lilting sweet as well as hot music, is composed of many individually famous performers who have been tagged among the most capable jazz musicians now on the bandstands. Ziggy Elman and Charlie Shavers, both authorities of the trumpet, have been included in the selections of many All-American jazz orchestras, and Stuart Foster, vocalist, is called a worthy successor to Frank Sinatra, who himself got his start with Dorsey's outfit.

Schepps said that several special matinee performances of the show have been arranged so that every visitor to the State Fair who so desires will have an opportunity to see what he termed the greatest variety show ever to come to the State Fair.

Care of Scissors and Shears is Stressed

Scissors and shears are probably the most abused of household implements. It is important that they be recognized as two different instruments and be treated as such. Scissors, which are generally much smaller than shears, are made for snipping and trimming. Shears, ordinarily 6 to 13 inches long, are designed for cutting fabric.

Scissors and shears often become dulled and damaged by improper use. If you use them for cutting paper, cardboard, wet cloth, and heavy string, they soon become dulled. If the blades are sprung from heavy cutting, they are permanently damaged. It is wise to keep a pair of inexpensive shears for such cutting.

Scissors can be protected by hanging them up or keeping them in a box. Wrapping them in wax paper will protect them from rust in damp weather.

Shears and scissors should be oiled about every six months. To do this put one drop of machine oil on each side of the screw that holds the blades together. Always wipe them after using as dust and fibers might cause moisture to collect on the blades and rust them. If rust does appear, rub the spots with fine sandpaper and apply a little oil.

Unless you are very skilled as a scissors sharpener, it will generally pay to take your scissors to an expert when this job needs to be done.

Mr. and Mrs. Nolan Dodson spent Sunday and Monday in Kerrville. They took their son, Clyde, to enter him in Schriner Institute.

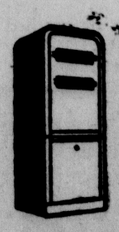
Take it Easy

You can afford the luxury of Automatic Central Gas Heat



CLOSET-TYPE AUTOMATIC GAS FURNACE

For the cottage where space is limited this closet-type furnace is ideal for installation in small space. It provides clean, warm air throughout the house. It is completely automatic. It is quiet, efficient and costs little to operate. It is vented to a flue.

How would you like to sit back and enjoy life during winter without a single heating worry? You can! Simply include heating as part of house in your remodeling or building plans.

Closet type central furnaces are being specified here in Southwest by new home builders. They like this furnace because it provides fresh, cleaned, warmed air automatically. They like it because it can be installed in small space. They like it because it costs little to operate. And they like it because it is vented to a flue.

You, too, will like it. And you can afford it when it is included as part of house cost. Remember, a house is no more modern than its heating system.
